Meeting Times for Classroom: M 10:40-12:05 Location: 100A

Course Description: In this course, students will work at the on-site Entrepreneurship and Community Development Clinic (ECDC), obtaining "hands on" experience representing local businesses and entrepreneurs on transactional legal issues critical to their success, including assistance and counseling on entity selection and formation; regulatory compliance and licensing; trademark/copyright protection; lease review and negotiation; contract preparation/review/negotiation; and other legal issues confronting small businesses. Students also will learn how a small law office operates, including procedures for client intake, conflict checking, file maintenance, project tracking, timekeeping, and scheduling. In addition to attending the weekly class, students will be expected to spend approximately 14 hours per week on their clinic work, with a minimum of 4 of those hours spent working in the clinic office located in the law school. The ECDC will represent clients of limited financial means who cannot afford the services of the private bar and will not represent clients in litigation.

Special Notes: Interested students should fill out the attached "Application for Enrollment" and return it to Professor Goldfarb by November 16, 2010. Professor Goldfarb may request follow-up interviews.
