COURSE DESCRIPTION:

This course is intended to give students a chance to apply their academic education to situations typically encountered by attorneys in a corporate transactional practice. The course should provide students with experiences similar to those encountered by a young corporate associate in a law firm or by a young lawyer directly advising closely held companies. Areas of focus will include reading and understanding corporate transactional documents, drafting and negotiating legal agreements and advising clients on transactional issues. The course is open to students who are currently enrolled in or who have previously taken Corporations I. It is anticipated that assignments will include mandatory and optional reading assignments, drafting legal documents and an oral exercise. All reading materials will be provided by the instructor. There will be no final exam.

SPECIAL NOTES:

This course meets on a special schedule on the following Thursday afternoons from 4:40 pm to 6:20 pm: 9-16, 9-23, 9-30, 10-7, 10-21, 10-28, 11-4, and 11-11.
